DEPARTMENT OF ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION
SCHOOL OF EDUCATION, LOYOLA MARYMOUNT UNIVERSITY

The School of Education is seeking a tenure-track faculty member with in-depth knowledge of Teacher Preparation. The candidate will serve as an Associate or Full Professor in the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and a leader in teacher preparation beginning Fall 2019. The ideal candidate should have competency in PK-12 urban and inclusive teacher preparation in public, private, and charter schools, and demonstrate strength in at least two of the following areas: Inclusion, Special Education, English Learners, Educational Assessment, STEM, Social Studies, or Curriculum/Instruction.

Applicants should have experience as a leader, as well as PK-12 experience, knowledge of California Teacher Performance Expectations (TPEs), Common Core standards, and the current content standards. A record of research, publication, and external funding is required. The faculty will teach courses and support all facets of a learning environment consistent with the University and School mission. The faculty will encourage a culture of learning that values mutual responsibility, ethics, respect, life-long learning, and personal and professional development.

Key Job Elements:

- Teach courses in an area of strength in teacher preparation.
- Continue research, publications, and grant writing/external funding.
- Prepare candidates in general education and/or special education in undergraduate and graduate courses/programs.
- Work closely with the Department Chair and other faculty and staff to support programs in teacher preparation, collaborate with partners, and assume leadership responsibilities.
- Demonstrate knowledge of Universal Design for Learning (UDL), Assistive Technology, and Multi-Tiered Systems of Support (MTSS) as applicable to diverse learners, including students with disabilities and English Learners.
- Prepare course syllabi and teach curricula according to the goals and objectives of the department/program.
- Integrate Common Core standards and California Teacher Performance Expectations (TPEs) into course content and instruction.
- Integrate technology into instruction in a manner that is beneficial to both candidates and PK-12 students.
- Participate in retention and recruitment activities.
- Work closely with field instructors and other part-time faculty.
- Assist in program development, design, evaluation, and accreditation.
- Represent LMU at various constituent meetings and participate in required programs, department, and school activities.

Qualifications:

Applicants are expected to have an earned doctorate in Education or related field. A minimum of 3 years PK-12 teaching experience is required. Preferred candidates should also evidence the ability to teach and support all candidates at the graduate and undergraduate levels, including familiarity with a variety of teaching modalities and online instruction. Applicants should have a professional interest that aligns with the University and School of Education mission of offering multicultural and social justice education.
